

Alex Baltusch has 25 years of experience in finance and technology.

In his current role as SVP, Chief Risk Officer for Israel Credit Card (ICC) and Diners Club (Israel) he leads the overall risk management, compliance and fraud risk operations. Previously he served as SVP, Group Credit Risk Manager for Bank Hapoalim (Israel's largest bank), where he led the development and implementation of large scale credit risk management solutions and models, based on advanced methodologies and technology. Prior to that, Mr. Baltusch led large scale Internet and financial technology business initiatives and projects. He also consults start-ups and financial institutions on strategy, financial technology, risk management and business development.

Mr. Baltusch lectures at the Tel Aviv University – Recanati Business School, MBA program in the fields of Risk Management and Financial Technology (FInTech) and at CIIM, Cyprus in the field of Risk Management. He is also a guest lecturer at Bar Ilan University, Israel and Executive Training courses.

Mr. Baltusch received his B.Sc. in Computer Engineering from the Technion - Israel Institute of Technology, Haifa, Israel. He continued his studies at the Tel-Aviv University in Israel where he received his MBA in Marketing.