

Dr. Patricia Elgoibar is post-doctoral researcher and professor in negotiation, cross cultural management and human resources at the Faculty of Business, University of Barcelona. Previously, she has worked as professor in negotiation and academic director of the MSc in International Business Negotiation at IESEG School of Management (France). Patricia developed her PhD at KU Leuven (Belgium) and at the University of Seville (Spain) for which she was awarded with the prize of best doctoral thesis in social science for the year 2013.

As a researcher she is working in the coordination team of the European research project funded by the European Commission since 2010: “New European industrial relations (NEIRE)”. Among other research works, she is co-editor of the handbooks “Building trust and constructive conflict behavior in organizations” Springer International, 2016; “Promoting social dialogue in European organizations. Human Resources management and constructive conflict behavior” Springer International, 2015; and “Ten steps for empowering worker representatives in the new European industrial relations” McGraw Hill, 2012. She has published research papers in the contexts of European industrial relations, conflict management, gender equality, negotiation and social dialogue.